

TH Mack, Sr. Featured in Colorado Black Leadership Profiles

A record of recognition on page 166

Photograph supplied by the contributor; the pictured ceremony has not been identified.

TH Mack, Sr.'s inclusion on page 166 of Colorado Black Leadership Profiles marks a place for his story in a publication documenting Black leadership in Colorado. The reference preserves a milestone in his personal history and connects it to a broader record of individuals across the state.

Written by Wallace Yvonne Tollette, the book brings together profiles of Colorado's Black leaders. For Mack, being included offers a lasting reference that can be shared with family, friends, and future generations.

A published profile gives personal history a durable home. It allows readers to return to an account beyond the occasion when it was first written and helps preserve names and experiences within a wider community narrative. Mack's page 166 reference provides a specific point of connection to that record.

The recognition also adds context to the leadership experiences featured on THMackSr.info, including his service as a past president of the Colorado Chapter of 100 Black Men of America. Together, these milestones form part of the personal history he has chosen to preserve and share.

This article celebrates Mack's inclusion without reproducing or summarizing the unseen entry. The original profile remains the source for its specific biographical details and account of his accomplishments.

For visitors to THMackSr.info, Colorado Black Leadership Profiles offers another avenue for exploring Mack's story: a published record that places his profile alongside others represented in Colorado's Black leadership history.

Reference note: The page 166 attribution was supplied by the contributor; the entry has not been independently viewed. Author attribution: Wallace Yvonne Tollette, "Jazz in Five Points," Front Porch, February 2008.